The Inquisitor's Apprentice
By Anna

This book is about a boy who lives with his very poor family. In this world magic is illegal and there is a special branch of the NYPD called the inquisitors branch. He has to take a series of tests and then gets a letter from the NYPD recruiting him to the inquisitorial department. He goes to work but hides the fact that his family is poor and it gets harder and harder keep it from his colleagues. He gets into trouble with magic and monsters.

The book I read over winter break is called The Inquisitor's Apprentice. I do not know what the Narrator’s name is but the book is written in third person. The narrator is a very good source of information. The setting is the Lower East Side of New York City sometime in the 20th century. This book relates to the time period because it was a very poor time and he is poor. The genre of this book is fantasy mystery. I liked the book because I like mysteries and fantasies.

The Inquisitor's Apprentice by Chris Moriarty
By Amara

The basic plotline of the book The Inquisitor’s Apprentice is that Sacha (a poor Jewish boy) finds out about something amazing his body could do, and he is hired as an inquisitor's apprentice. Sacha and Lily (another apprentice) then must solve a case that even inquisitor wolf couldn’t. They meet many fun characters on the way, most of which help them find the villain of the story.

The narrator of Inquisitor’s Apprentice does a good job of capturing the adventure in this strange tale. The narrator is simply the narrator, and as far as the book goes, they're of no significance.

The story is in third person, as many stories with narrators often are. The narrator is definitely a good and reliable source of information. The story mainly takes place on the Lower East Side of New York City, in the 20th century. This influenced the story slightly, with the crowds, the people, the food, and the places. In the end of the book, Sacha realizes that you don't need to hide who you are.

I would give this book three and a half stars, because while it was a wonderful adventure and had many great characters, the book can leave you hanging many times in the story, and sometimes not in a good way. It is confusing, and sometimes you can’t imagine what is going on. But on the other hand, it is a beautiful tale that really touches your heart. All the interesting characters pull the story to where it ends with the interesting and intriguing page about the dybbuk, which haunts the story from beginning to end.
The Inquisitor's Apprentice by Chris Moriarty

By Hana

I read the book the inquisitor's apprentice. This book is about a boy who is very poor. In this world magic is illegal. Sachah has to take a bunch of tests and gets in to a thing. He keeps hiding secrets from his family and from inquisitor wolf. He gets in a lot of trouble with magic and monsters. We do not know who the narrator is.

This book is in third person. I think this is a Good source of info. This book takes place in the Lower east new york city. This books setting is in the 20th century. It was a very poor time and sachah’s family is poor. This books genre is mystery/fantasy. In my opinion the book is as good as Nancy Drew. The author is Chris moriarty. My summary is: Sacha took a bunch of tests and got a job and hid a bunch of information from wolf and his family.

These are the characters in the book… Sacha, Bekah, Mr. Kessler, Rabbi Kessler, Grampa Kessler, Rosie, Lily, Inquisitor Wolf, Thomas Edison, Mrs. Little Cairo, Mrs. Darling, Mrs. Worley, Mr. Worley, James, Shen, Moishe, morgaunt, Payton, antonio, Houdini, Mrs. Laskey, Mr. Kaufmann, Mrs. Leberman, Mr. Rabinowitz.